Elevate launches as Ofqual recognised End Point Assessment Organisation

10 September 2024 – Elevate, a newly established Ofqual recognised End Point Assessment Organisation (EPAO), is focused on making a meaningful impact in the apprenticeship assessment field. By offering a streamlined, transparent, and supportive approach, Elevate aims to meet the evolving needs of apprentices, employers and training providers. This commitment aligns with the UK government’s ambition to enhance the quality and impact of apprenticeships across England.

As a dedicated EPAO, Elevate is focused on providing a smooth, transformative end point assessment partnership. “Our goal is to honour the hard work of apprentices, employers, and training providers, making Elevate a standout, customer-focused leader in the EPA sector,” said Melanie Feek, Managing Director and Founder of Elevate.

Elevate's services cover a wide range of apprenticeship standard routes, including Education and Early Years, Digital, Care Services, Business and Administration, and Protective Services. Each sector has its own unique needs, and Elevates' expertise ensures a tailored assessment approach that upholds rigorous standards and supports high-quality, relevant training programs.

Elevate's launch marks an important step forward in the end point assessment sector, emphasising a customer-focused approach that fosters trust and excellence. By partnering closely with both training providers and employers, Elevate is dedicated to enhancing the apprenticeship experience across England, aligning with the government’s goals of promoting innovation and skill development.
